SIR E. BURNE JONES, 1875.

5922.10. 24 THE MIRROR OF VENUS

"In the foreground of a bare quasi-Umbrian landscape, which, notwithstanding its nakedness, has an august beauty, is a silent pool thickly fringed on its lips with forget-me-nots. Round this has gathered a whole company of fair nymphs or mortals clad in rainbow-hued filmy robes of lilac, amber, violet, green and blue—all these tints shot through with gold and kindred tints—and chapleted with flowers. Standing, bending or kneeling, in the most varied attitudes, on the margin of the mirror-like pool, these fair women—all too absolutely of the consecrated Burne-Jonesian type—admire their reflections in nature's looking-glass."—The Magazine of Art, 1893-4.

- 16 & 7. 10. 48 VERONICA VERONESE. Three-quarter figure of a female, in a green dress, seated at a sort of cabinet, holding a violin in left hand and bow in right; canary in a cage behind her.

"Se penchant vivement, La Veronica jeta les premières notes sur la feuille vierge. Ensuite elle prit l'archet du violon pour réaliser son rêve : mais avant de décrocher l'instrument suspendu, elle resta quelques instants immobile en écoutant l'oiseau inspirateur, pendant que sa main gauche errait sur les cordes cherchant le motif suprême encore éloigné. C'était le mariage des voix de la nature et de l'âme—l'aube d'une création mystique."—Lettres de Girolamo Ridolfi.

3/50. 49 DANTE AT THE BIER OF BEATRICE. Illustrative of the Passage in the 'Vita Nuova,' in which Dante describes his dream on the day of the death of Beatrice Portinari

"Then Love said: Now shall all things be made clear:
Come and be told our lady where she lies!
These 'withering fantasies'
Then carried me to see my lady dead.
Even as I there was led,
Her ladies with a veil were covering her;
And with her was such very humbleness
That she appeared to say, 'I am in peace.'"

The scene is a chamber of dreams, strewn with poppies, where Beatrice is seen lying on a couch, as if just fallen back in death; the winged figure of Love, in red drapery (the pilgrim Love of the 'Vita Nuova,' wearing the scallop shell on his shoulder), leads by the hand Dante, who walks conscious but absorbed, as in sleep; in his other hand Love carries his arrow pointed at the dreamer's heart, and with it a branch of apple blossom. As he reaches the bier Love bends for a moment over Beatrice with the kiss which her lover has never given her, while the two green-clad dream ladies hold the pall full of may bloom suspended for an instant before it covers her face for ever. On either side of the recessed couch two open passages lead to staircases, in each of which a bird is seen flying, of the same glowing hue as the figure of Love, the emblems of his presence filling the house. Through the openings, and above, where the roof also lies open, bells are tolling for the dead, and beyond, in the distance, is the outer world of reality—the city of Florence, which, as Dante says, "sat solitary" for his lady's death. Over all the angels float upwards, as in his dream, "having a little cloud in front of them."

This picture repeats, on a somewhat smaller scale, the picture in the possession of the Corporation of Liverpool, but the two subjects of the predella do not occur in the larger picture. These subjects are: (1) Dante crying in his dream, and (2) Dante recounting his dream.
